

song #1: Appreciate it while you're here

You're singing in the kitchen,
Getting every other word wrong.
I'm looking for my car keys,
You're asking me to sing along.
I say I'm running late again,
Though I've got nowhere to be.
You go back to making dinner,
Still setting out a plate for me.

I keep calling this the meantime,
Like my life has yet to start.
Always halfway out the doorway,
Even when I get what I want.

I don't wanna love this only later,
When there's nothing I can do but miss it.
Spend my life trying to get somewhere,
Then wish I'd stayed another minute.
There's a voice in the next room,
There's a reason to stay here.
Don't save all your love for looking back—
Appreciate it while you're here.

Found a picture of our old place,
The one we couldn't wait to leave.
You were sitting on the counter
With your bare feet touching me.
Funny, I remember being restless,
Always talking 'bout a change.
Now I barely see the peeling paint;
I just wanna hear what we were saying.

And I wonder what I'm walking past
That I'll go looking for someday.
You're telling me about your afternoon.
I put my phone away.

I don't wanna love this only later,
When there's nothing I can do but miss it.
Spend my life trying to get somewhere,
Then wish I'd stayed another minute.
There's a voice in the next room,
There's a reason to stay here.
Don't save all your love for looking back—
Appreciate it while you're here.

We can still move out in April.
I still wanna see the coast.
But you're asking how my day went,
And the dinner's getting cold.
Let me pull another chair up.
Tell the story I've already heard.
I know the part that makes you laugh—
Go on, I won't say a word.

You're singing in the kitchen.
I leave my keys beside the door.
I come in on the wrong line.
You laugh and start once more.
